CESC electricity dues mount up to Rs. 900 crore

MAJOR DEFAULTERS

- Govt. Departments - Rs. 500 crore
- Public - Rs. 400 crore

Mysuru, May 5 (GA&BCT)- While the Chamundeshwari Electricity Supply Corporation (CESC) has taken various initiatives to ensure that people are getting uninterrupted power supply even in the face of disruptions due to rain and wind, a major roadblock CESC is facing in its performance is the pending power bills.

The pending bills have gone up to a whopping Rs. 900 crore and the major defaulters are Government Departments and also normal electricity consumers (public). A heartening factor here is that industries have cleared their major dues and only some have retained a backlog.

Addressing a press conference at his office last evening, CESC Managing Director Jayavibhavaswamy said that the dues from public amount to Rs. 400 crore and the remaining Rs. 500 crore are from various Government Offices, Urban Local Bodies, Rural Local Bodies and schemes like Kuteera Jyothi, Bhagya Jyothi and lift irrigation that come under Rural Development and Panchayat Raj.

CESC controls 27,858 sq.km of area that comes under Mysuru, Mandya, Chamarajanagar, Kodagu and Hassan and till now, the dues have mounted up to Rs. 900 crore, he said. The dues were up to Rs. 1,100 crore and the pending money is being cleared in stages, he added.

"We have stepped up recovery despite problems faced by our staff and we have informed the State Government about outstanding dues. Gradually they will be cleared," he added.

To the questions raised by reporters on the reported threats faced by the CESC staff from politicians and their followers if there is any disconnection of supply in the wake of default, Jayavibhavaswamy said that the officers would convince the defaulters on the efforts made to recover mounting dues.

Symposium on e-vehicles

In a major push to the use of electric vehicles (EVs), CESC has taken a step ahead in organising a symposium on 'E-Vehicles and its charging technologies' on May 7 at KEB Employees Association Training Institute in Kadakola.

EDITOR'S BOTTOMLINE

While COVID continues in one way or another to impact all sectors and aspects of society, the nature of that impact differs significantly depending on the conditions in which people find themselves. Our real priority now is to face head-on the issues the pandemic has exposed, such as the need to rebuild the economy and livelihoods and reweave the social fabric so that it can support people's lives in the years and decades to come. In considering this challenge, it is worth mentioning the words of UN Secretary General António Guterres last June: "We heal together when we all get the care we need."

This year marks seven years since the adoption by the UN of the Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs). In order to accelerate the recovery from the pandemic, it is important to flesh out the core spirit of the SDGs — the determination to leave no one behind — by adding a further vision of building a society where all can savour the joy of being alive. The feelings of relief and even joy that well up in a person who is aided in passage to safe haven after having been caught in the undertow of life's trials and having given in to despair. We must aim to construct a society in which such feelings — the palpable sense that it is, indeed, good to be alive — are shared by all.

70-year-old runs 100-metre race in 13.47 seconds

New York: A 70-year-old American runner named Michael Kish, stunned the audience at the Penn Relays athletic event last Thursday, by finishing the 100-metre dash in under 14 seconds.

Just imagine a pensioner and turning up at an important sporting event meant primarily for athletes in prime physical shape and stealing the show. That's exactly what Michael Kish did last week with his awe-inspiring performance in the 100-metre dash, blowing past his competitors and finishing with an impressive time of just 13.47 seconds. That's a time most 20-year-olds can only dream of beating, yet this 70-year-old grandfather ran it like it was no big deal.

The smallest piece of private property

New York: New York is a city full of unusual plots of land left over from various construction projects, but there is nothing as small and emblematic as the Hess Triangle, a private property barely larger than a pizza slice.

The story of the Hess Triangle began in 1910 when the city of New York claimed eminent domain in order to expropriate and demolish 253 buildings, including the Voorhis, a 5-storey apartment building owned by David Hess.

The businessman and his family fought the decision, but by 1913, they had exhausted all legal options and had to watch their property be demolished. However, in 1928, while checking property papers, Hess's heirs discovered that the city had neglected to seize a tiny corned of Plot 55 and quickly filed a notice of possession for it. That's how the Hess Triangle, the smallest piece of real estate in NYC came to be. Measuring only 0.0000797113 acres, the Hess Triangle is barely larger than a big slice of pizza.

Signal jumping menace

Sir,

It has been observed that most of the two-wheeler riders and auto drivers are jumping signals in many places such as Bamboo Bazaar, Vontikoppal and Metagalli traffic signal junctions and have no respect for the traffic rules.

This may lead to serious accidents of innocent riders, especially near the signals, who are religiously following rules.

I request the Police Department to appoint their personnel near traffic signals to catch and book these culprits and thus bring an end to this signal jumping menace which is on the rise.

PSI Exam Scam

Irregularities exposed by Police Department itself, says former CM H.D. Kumaraswamy

Kumaraswamy

Bengaluru, May 5 (KMS&KS)- "The irregularities in Police Sub-Inspector (PSI) recruitment exam, has been brought to light by the Police Department itself," said former Chief Minister H.D. Kumaraswamy (HDK).

Speaking to media persons here yesterday, HDK said: "I have got a different information, which has been leaked from the Police Department. Following the development after the murder at Chamarajpet, there is link in the exposure of irregularities in PSI exam."

Continuing, HDK said that the developments in the murder case of the youth identified as Chandru, have exposed the PSI exam scam. Pointing out that a BJP Spokesperson had accused Police Commissioner Kamal Pant and had complained that the Commissioner was lying in the murder case of the youth.

"The Police had stated that the youth was murdered in a fight after two bikes had collided with each other. But the BJP leaders had weaved a story by stating that the youth was murdered just because he did not know Urdu. From that issue, it has now come and stopped at the PSI exam scam," the former CM said.

Alleging that the BJP leader who had accused the honest Police Officer has links with the kingpin arrested in the PSI exam scam, HDK said that the Police have now exposed the scam and have brought it before the people.

"If I keep on telling about it, it will be a big story," Kumaraswamy said and added that not all those who had written the exam had paid money for the selection but 30 percent of them may have paid. About 30 to 40 percent may have written the exam honestly. All I want is justice to those who have been selected honestly," the former CM said.

Congress leaders are accusing Minister Dr. C.N. Ashwathnarayan in the scam, do they have documents to it? he questioned and added that the Minister's colleagues themselves have spoken to the media against him, so that it would be brought before Union Home Minister Amit Shah when he was in Bengaluru.

"There is a conspiracy going on in the BJP for the ouster of Dr. Ashwathnarayan. The BJP leaders are lighting fire to their own house and we need not light fire. Should I carry petrol to pour on fire? Congress leaders have no strength to fight for real issues. They speak what someone had told," Kumaraswamy said.

Meanwhile, the State Criminal Investigation Department (CID) investigation has revealed that the father of a B.Sc graduate from Kalaburagi region had paid Rs. 50 lakh to ensure that his son scores high marks in the October 2021 PSI recruitment exam.

As many as eight candidates, who had written the exam in Kalaburagi on Oct. 3, 2021, have been arrested by the CID. Out of seven exam centres, one of the exam centre was a school run by a local BJP leader.

A total of 45 people, including 30 candidates, have been named in the scam so far. The candidates are alleged to have paid between Rs. 30 lakh and Rs. 80 lakh to agents to facilitate cheating.

At some centres, the entire exam hall was rigged to allow invigilators to provide answers, while bluetooth devices were used by individual candidates in some cases, the CID probe has found.

The recruitment process has been declared cancelled by the State Government.

> BJP leaders had humiliated honest Police Officer Kamal Pant by accusing him in the scam. Now, Kamal Pant's followers in the Police Department, to teach a lesson to the Government, have exposed the scam. The scam was not exposed by the Government but by the Police Department itself.

Playing proverbial 'PING - PONG' with Lansdowne Building and Devaraja Market

Demolish & Reconstruct

By V.N. Prasad

V.N. Prasad

Regarding demolition or reconstruction of the dilapidated, heritage buildings of Devaraja Market and the Lansdowne Building, the "Costs Vs Risk Analyses" needs genuine intents. Bold approach is essential for Engineers of the Government to submit analytically sound reports for the politicians to take rational decisions with conviction. Appeasement reports will only cause hurdles than offer solutions.

We have seen catastrophes with onset of monsoon every year. Just imagine a situation when the market is full of people and a major collapse occurs — God forbid. And, our systems know that Indians have very short memory, much to their advantage.

I enumerate my thoughts while I say with conviction that both the structures need to be demolished and reconstructed.

1. 'Lime Paste' was in use those days from foundation up to parapets. No doubt, churning used to be very efficient. Bonding used to be excellent. Roofs were built with wooden beams, bricks and lime mortar; termed 'Madras Roof.' But when structures exhibit fatigue and failures, more rational approach to residual lives of structures need a critical analysis.

2. With time, lime mortar renders 'Hygroscopic' — a phenomenon that retains moisture and weakens structural elements over times. Both the structures seem to be under this distress.

3. During excessive rains, one can expect shock failures — meaning any portion can disintegrate and fall off. A time-dependent phenomenon called 'Creep' sets in; that causes differential deterioration and/or failures in different parts/sections of the structure. This is cancerous in nature, as failures/collapses are unpredictable.

4. Further, 'Expansion and Contraction' during summers and monsoons add to weakening of lime masonry and roofs; once creep has set in.

5. One may argue that structures like Dams and several major structures were also built during the same time — with lime mortar — and have sustained. Stringent maintenance routines are key to sustenance and these structures, Lansdowne Building and Devaraja Market, were grossly neglected ones, apparently.

6. Highly vulnerable is the foundation in various parts.

Invariably ancient structures that have taken beatings under differential weather conditions will have developed stresses that are extremely difficult or impossible for analyses microscopically. Critical of all is the foundation. Differential settlements of foundation will result in several unpredictable fatigues and/or failures.

Walls and roofs are likely to have developed internal cracks and are vulnerable to failures. Such failures will only manifest under critical weather and/or load conditions — where we virtually have no control. So, technically it is desirable to reinvest.

In my opinion, both Lansdowne Building and Devaraja Market have served the needs of the society long enough to retire them honourably. Both need to be demolished and reconstructed. The demography over the decades has changed drastically. Space utility to suit prevalent situations and projections over the decades going forward needs thorough examination. Surely, we have Architects who are competent to replicate the glory of ancient architectural features. Redesign and reconstruction will accommodate sufficient parking, loading/unloading zones, garbage/waste clearing facilities, better toilets and several other features that will be largely beneficial to the society in the long run.

More or most importantly, best of foundation engineering techniques can never assess the existing condition of foundation in entirety. Therefore, additional loads during renovations/restoration works will surely add loads on the foundation. Such added loads may cause differential settlements. My observations, in particular to the Market, is that it is in a 'low-lying area' where 'Water Table' appears high. And, therefore the existing foundations may not sustain.

In all my articles in the columns of Star of Mysore, my intentions have always been technically sound and not popular. I am ready for 'brickbats.' But am strongly of the opinion that both the buildings need to be demolished and reconstructed. I am prepared to anchor an open seminar on this. In this endeavour, it may not be a bad idea to approach huge corporates who have had excellent Balance Sheets for year ending 2021-22 to undertake total works on 'Turnkey' basis — with MINIMAL or NO interference by the local Government. Such corporates would perhaps benefit under the CSR.

A professional team of 'Project Management Consultants' with all the tools of pre-commencement routines and 'QAC' (Quality Assurance and Control) during execution would be imminent.

Mysuru has waited for more than a decade for a wise and technically sound decision. Revenue-strapped Governments would have done well to demolish and reconstruct the captioned buildings long time ago, when much less of tax-payers' money would have been consumed. We trust best sense will prevail.

A unique honour to IFS Officer P. Srinivas slain by Veerappan

Forest Department restores jeep the officer drove

The jeep that was driven by late DCF P. Srinivas — before and after restoration.

Chamarajanagar, May 5 (MTY &BCT)- In a heartfelt tribute to martyred Indian Forest Service (IFS) Officer P. Srinivas, who was killed by forest brigand Veerappan, the Forest Department has restored his jeep to a running condition and has turned it into a souvenir.

This was the same jeep that Srinivas rode during anti-Veerappan operations in Kollegal and Chamarajanagar forests that extended into Tamil Nadu, the core area of the bandit. The vehicle that was abandoned has been restored and has been kept in the museum at the office of the Deputy Conservator of Forests (DCF) in Kollegal taluk.

The museum, consisting of photographs, letters, documents and write-ups of Srinivas, was recently inaugurated by Chamarajanagar District Minister V. Somanna. This is one of the three jeeps that were used by Srinivas in the operation against Veerappan.

While one jeep was blasted by the brigand's men during the peak of Veerappan menace, the other one was given to the scrapyard as any other Government vehicle. This particular jeep Srinivas drove was dumped near the office of the Palar Range Forest Officer 30 years ago and had rusted and was about to be given away as scrap.

RESTORATION TASK

Realising the importance of the vehicle, DCF Male Mahadeshwara Wildlife Division V. Yedukondalu took up the task of restoring the jeep and also converting it into running condition. Parts were bought including the covers and the vehicle was restored to its original condition.

"This is the first such tribute to a martyred Forest Officer anywhere in India. People still love him and remember his contribution in conservation and moreover, he took the local villagers into confidence. We thought restoring the jeep and creating a museum is the best way to honour Srinivas, who was a 'Keerthi Chakra' (the second-highest peacetime gallantry award) recipient in 1992," Yedukondalu said.

The Forest Department spent Rs. 1.1 lakh to repair it and to restore it to running condition and another Rs. 3 lakh to put it up as a souvenir and also add the martyr officer's memorabilia to the museum.

The museum, established at the forest guest house at Kollegal, has photographs of search operations, the houses constructed by Srinivas for the poor at Gopinatham, writings related to him, documents and other memorabilia.

P. Srinivas, IFS 1979 batch (1954-1991), Karnataka Cadre, photographed on 4.11.1991 — six days before his assassination.

VEERAPPAN'S TRICK

Srinivas was born on September 12, 1954, in Rajahmundry, East Godavari district of Andhra Pradesh and he joined IFS in 1979. At a time when no forest officer or Police officer was willing to serve in Chamarajanagar district due to the fear of Veerappan, Srinivas was appointed there in 1990-91.

Realising that Veerappan cannot be nabbed without the support of local villagers, Srinivas formed a team of locals to help in the operation. Srinivas was successful in winning the confidence of the villagers and he was able to persuade the forest brigand to surrender.

However, Veerappan played a trick and invited Srinivas to Gopinatham saying that he would surrender. On November 10, 1991, Srinivas went to Gopinatham alone for the surrender deal but was tortured and beheaded at a hamlet a few kilometres away from Gopinatham.

A TEMPLE TO OFFICER

At the time of his death, DCF Srinivas was the Assistant Commander in the Special Task Force formed to capture Veerappan. Notably, Srinivas was deeply influenced by Vinoba Bhave and had a strong belief that Veerappan can be persuaded to renounce weapons and violence.

He was loved by villagers and in honour of the officer, a temple was constructed by villagers and tribals at the place where he was murdered. Srinivas' photograph adorns the walls of every house in Gopinatham and surrounding areas as he built many houses for the villagers and tribals there.

He also constructed a Mariyamma Temple and the deity is strongly believed by villagers. In fact, even now, the first puja at the Temple is performed to Srinivas.

CESC electricity dues mount up

Apart from the seminar, the CESC is in the process of setting up three EV charging stations apart from its already operational charging stations at its Corporate Office in Vijayanagar. The three new EV charging stations will come up at Kadakola, Kuvempunagar and Jyothinagar.

Jayavibhavaswamy said that the focus of the seminar is on green transport by inviting stakeholders to discuss the future technologies in electric vehicles, batteries and charging stations. "We are bringing the stakeholders on a common platform to get first-hand information on the initiatives and charging facilities," he said.

The day-long seminar, to be inaugurated by Energy Minister V. Sunil Kumar will also be a place for stakeholders to clear doubts. "Over 700 stakeholders from across the State will participate in the seminar and discuss the pros and cons of electric vehicles and charging technologies. Professionals from Original Equipment Manufacturers (OEMs), Charge Point Operators (CPOs), Technology and Service Providers, E-Vehicle dealers and other EV stakeholders have been invited," he added.

CESC purchases two electric four-wheelers

"To encourage green transport, CESC has purchased two electric four-wheelers to set an example and these vehicles will be inducted to the fleet of existing CESC vehicles and will be put to use at our Corporate Office," he said.

Apart from the four electric charging points in Mysuru, CESC is planning to set up 10 such stations on the Mysuru-Bengaluru Expressway.

"CESC has jurisdiction till Channapatna and 10 charging stations will come up from Channapatna to Mysuru. The National Highways Authority of India (NHAI) will identify suitable places on the Expressway to set up the charging stations. Including four from CESC, there are eight electric vehicle charging stations in Mysuru and among them, four are under private ownership," he added.

The CESC has urged the Commissioners of Mysuru City Corporation, Mysuru Urban Development Authority and Municipal Offices at Mandya, Hassan, Chamarajanagar and Madikeri to provide details of space available on their premises for the allocation of two-wheeler charging stations, Jayavibhavaswamy added.

CESC Director (Technical) Manjappa, Karnataka Power Transmission Corporation Limited Auditors' Association President G. Manjappa, General Manager (HR) P. Ravikumar, General Manager (Purchase) K.M. Munigopalaraju, Chief Finance Officer Sheik Mohammad Muhimulla and others were present.

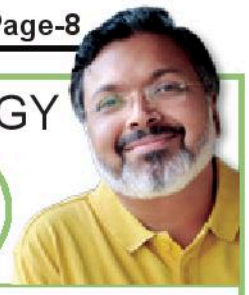
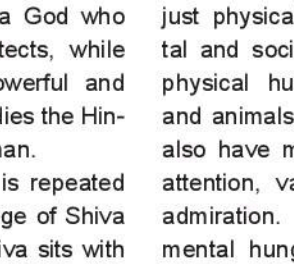
DECODING MYTHOLOGY



Dr. Devdutt Pattanaik - Author, Speaker, Illustrator, Mythologist

Ganesha & Ambition

Ganesha, the elephant-headed God of Hindus, is renowned for his huge belly, which is a symbol of affluence and abundance. His elephant head evokes power. His vehicle, or vahana, is a tiny mouse, which is known to overcome barriers, and find its way into storehouses, find food and hoard it. Rats are notorious to catch. But few notice that around his belly is a snake. Snakes eat rats. In Ganesha's hand is a sweetmeat called modaka, shaped like a bag of coins. Ganesha's rat does not seem to be interested in nibbling a bit of that food.



So, we have before us an image of affluence and abundance indicated by the elephant-head and the potbelly. But we also have the image of contentment: the snake is not eating the rat and the rat is not eating the sweet. Ganesha seems to offer the moneybag shaped sweetmeat to his devotees with one hand. The other hand's palm faces outwards and points upwards, which means, do not be afraid. Ganesha is thus a God who provides and protects, while being affluent, powerful and content. He embodies the Hindu ideal of a yajaman.

The same idea is repeated in the popular image of Shiva and his family. Shiva sits with his wife, Parvati, and his two sons, Ganesha and Kartikeya, atop Mount Kailash. Each of them are linked with various animals, their vahanas. Shiva has a bull, Parvati a tiger, Ganesha a rat and Kartikeya a peacock. Additionally, a hooded serpent is coiled around Shiva's neck. Mount Kailash is made of stone and covered with snow. Not even a blade of grass grows here. What does Shiva's bull eat? And why does Shiva's bull not quiver at the sight of Parvati's tiger? And why is Kartikeya's peacock not attacking Shiva's serpent and why is Shiva's serpent not chasing Ganesha's rat? Even here there seems to be no sign of hunger, total contentment. Ganesha's belly reminds us, there is wealth here. Kartikeya's lance reminds us, there is power here. Shiva's ash-smeared body indicates he has no possessions, even though his wife, Parvati, is the lady of the mountains.

Both these artworks are showing a very simple idea. There is fear when there is violence. And there is violence when there is hunger. The act of feeding involves violence. In Shiva's presence, no one is hungry. So, the tiger does not attack the bull and the bull has no need to graze. The serpent is not prey to the peacock nor predator to the rat. And the rat does not devour the sweets that Ganesha holds in his hand. Kartikeya does not need to use his lance to protect Ganesha's sweets or Ganesha's rat or Shiva's serpent.

This image will not be part of management schools as we are told this is a religious image. But in fact it is an image to make students wonder about hunger, food and violence. Ambition is just another word for hunger, which makes us violent, combative and competitive. Natural violence is different from cultural violence. Human hunger is not just physical; it is also mental and social. Humans have physical hunger, like plants and animals, for food. But we also have mental hunger, for attention, validation, respect, admiration. To satisfy this mental hunger we have social hunger. We seek wealth, power and knowledge. More wealth gives us more power. More power gives us more wealth. More knowledge gives us more wealth. More wealth gives us more knowledge.

Human hunger is fuelled by imagination and is insatiable. That is why the rich, powerful and knowledgeable continue to be ambitious, rather than content. Business schools encourage people to stay ambitious; contentment is viewed as complacency, and laziness. Contentment is seen as destroying the drive and motivation to generate wealth, power and knowledge. Stay hungry, we are told. This fuels violence; the war-room culture around the world where the rival is enemy and customer's wallet is prey to be consumed.

WORD OF THE DAY

Imprimatur

Pronunciation: im-pruh-MAH-toor.
Meaning: An imprimatur is an official approval.
Origin: Imprimatur means "let it be printed" in New Latin. It comes from Latin imprimere, meaning to "imprint" or "impress." In the 1600s, the word appeared in the front matter of books, accompanied by the name of an official authorizing the book's printing. In time, English speakers began using imprimatur in the general sense of "official approval."
Example: "Various uses for the land—some grandiose—have been floated and sunk over the years, but the latest proposal ... was given the imprimatur of the city commission, which unanimously approved it....." — Larry Keller

THE ODD WORD

Iconomancy

Divination using icons.

PHRASE OF THE DAY

It's anyone's call

Meaning: The expression "it's anyone's call" explains a situation in which any possible outcome is as likely as the next, where it is almost impossible to predict what will happen.
Origin: The phrase most likely started from a sports game where a ref had to "make a call", meaning he had to make a 'verdict'.
Example: "The score is so close that the game really is anyone's call."
